GLENGOYNE 17 YEARS OLD

Scottish Oak | Highland Single Malt Whisky

Glengoyne 17 Years Old is the third release in the Oak Masters' Series, which turns to a different wood each year; the White and Mizunara editions preceded it in 2024 and 2025. This limited Highland single malt edition is bottled at 51.6% volume.
MATURATION: Most of the maturation took place in refill bourbon and refill sherry casks. The blending team then selected casks for a finish in virgin Scottish oak from sustainably managed woodland around Killearn, a village about five miles from the distillery. The length of the finish was set cask by cask, up to two years.
SUGGESTIONS: Serve neat in a tulip glass first, then add still water a few drops at a time if the strength feels high. A mature Gruyère makes a good partner at the table; for a cigar, choose a mild to medium Dominican robusto.

Tasting notes

Aroma

Heather honey, lime, stewed pear, raspberry, almond and tropical fruit.

Taste

Toasted oak, fresh fruit, oat and raisin cookies, vanilla, warming ginger and a touch of nutmeg.

Finish

Long and gentle: toasted nuts, vanilla, light tannins and sweet spice.
GLENGOYNE DISTILLERY Glengoyne sits on the Highland Line north of Glasgow and has distilled there since 1833. It has never used peat: the barley is air-dried, and the stills run at around five litres a minute, roughly a third of the usual industry pace. Today the distillery belongs to Ian Macleod Distillers.
