

INVERGORDON 1974 | 50 YEARS

Chapter 7 Single Cask Whisky | 2025 Release

Chapter 7 Invergordon 1974 is a single-cask Highland single grain from the Monologue series — bottled October 2025 at 43.8% volume. Just 239 bottles, natural colour, non-chill-filtered. MATURATION: distilled in November 1974 at Invergordon — the Highlands' only grain distillery, on the Cromarty Firth — and matured fifty years in a single bourbon hogshead. The patient marriage of column-still corn spirit and American oak is what makes an ultra-aged spirit possible without the wood overrunning it. SERVING: serve neat in a Glencairn at room temperature; allow five minutes of air before three drops of cool water reveal the deeper register. A contemplative pour for a quiet evening — pairs with a mild Dominican Connecticut cigar, or stands alone. Not a cocktail base.

Tasting notes

Color

Deep amber gold with mahogany highlights.

Aroma

Dried tropical fruits, vanilla, polished oak, coconut, old leather.

Taste

Silky and layered: honeycomb, caramelised nuts, spiced orchard fruits, gentle oak tannins.

Finish

Long, refined: toffee, nutmeg, soft tobacco leaf.

CHAPTER 7 Chapter 7 publishes single casks the way an editor commissions essays — picky about voice, indifferent to fashion. This Invergordon anchors the Monologue line as the oldest spirit the house has ever bottled. The choice to lead with a grain whisky — a category the Scotch trade typically relegates to blends — is the kind of editorial conviction that defines Chapter 7.
