

HAMPDEN 1993 | 30 YEARS

Samaroli Single Cask Rum #8267

Samaroli Jamaica 1993 is a Hampden single cask, distilled in 1993 and bottled in Scotland in 2023 from selected cask HO.8267. It is a thirty-year release bottled at 63.7% volume, with the focus kept on the cask, age and Hampden's Jamaican identity. AGEING: the official Samaroli note stresses minimum intervention, so the story is not a decorative finish but time in one selected cask. The long maturation has moved the spirit past youthful force into a more composed register, while keeping the Jamaican distillery identity clear. SERVING: pour a small measure in a tulip glass and wait before adding water. A few precise drops are enough. For a cigar pairing, choose My Father Le Bijou 1922 Grand Robusto: cocoa, toast and wood have the weight for this mature Hampden without covering it.

Tasting notes

Color

Deep amber gold.

Aroma

Almond, marzipan, sesame, mint, spring flowers, ripe fruit and polished wood.

Taste

Dense and oily, with candied fruit, vanilla pastry, toasted spice and firm grip.

Finish

Long close with citrus oils, tobacco leaf, dry resin and measured heat.

HAMPDEN X SAMAROLI Hampden Estate was founded in 1753 in Trelawny, Jamaica, and is a reference for heavy pot-still rum built on molasses, long natural fermentation and dunder. Samaroli was founded in 1968 by Silvano Samaroli and became one of Europe's defining independent bottlers. When the two names meet, the emphasis is usually selection: distillery character kept intact, bottled through an Italian lens rather than blended into anonymity.
