

CAOL ILA 1980 / 33 YO

Samaroli | Cask No.4934 | 2013 Release

Single cask, single malt Islay whisky, bottled and refined inside the bottle in Scotland since April, 2013. These bottles are very rare, they were imported to Japan by accident then sent back to Switzerland. They have Japanese and Swiss import stickers. Only 240 bottles were released in 2013.

Tasting notes

Aroma

Elegant nose composed by a symphony of wax and peat.

Taste

The odine notes fade slowly leading to a rebellious spirit with a rich floral bouquet. About Independent Bottler Samaroli: Samaroli is probably Italy's most renowned independent bottler, considered a visionary by most. Impeccable taste and an eye for aesthetics have given numerous of his bottlings a worthy place in the pantheon of whisky and rum giants. Today the production is under Antonio Bleve's direction, who has collaborated with Samaroli for many years and shares the passion and philosophy of the house. Antonio Bleve continues his quest for exceptional casks, relying on the brand's historical relationships and new interactions, making their latest bottlings increasingly in demand.
