

MACDUFF SHERRY 1997/21 YO

Samaroli | Cask No.5869 | 2018 Release

So after another year of aging in the same cask, Samaroli brings you once again a marriage of opposites. The austerity of this single malt mingles with the pungent sweetness of the sherry cask. The 2018 Edition has developed more rounder tones than the previous bottling. Limited only 291 bottles.

Tasting notes

Color

Amber

Aroma

Sweet hints of dried fruit and quince followed by sulfur notes.

Taste

An oily mouthfeel, the saltiness is balanced by a sherried sweetness on the palate, juicy berries making an appearance alongside dried fruit, quince and a whisper of smoke. Sharpness and sweetness battle, and sweetness prevails.

Finish

Juicy red fruits remain with a touch of cooking spice.

About Independent Bottler Samaroli: Samaroli is probably Italy's most renowned independent bottler, considered a visionary by most. Impeccable taste and an eye for aesthetics have given numerous of his bottlings a worthy place in the pantheon of whisky and rum giants. Today the production is under Antonio Bleve's direction, who has collaborated with Samaroli for many years and shares the passion and philosophy of the house. Antonio Bleve continues his quest for exceptional casks, relying on the brand's historical relationships and new interactions, making their latest bottlings increasingly in demand.
