

GLENBURGIE 1995 / 21 YO

Samaroli | Cask No.6332 | 2016 Release

Samaroli Glenburgie 1995 boasts a sophisticated and harmonious aroma profile featuring hints of balsamic, sea salt, and malt, beautifully complemented by wild honey, spices, and a touch of licorice. This fine spirit originated from the Glenburgie - Glenlivet distillery, initially founded as Kilnflat in 1810 by William Paul. In 2004, the original distillery was dismantled and replaced with two new stills. Just one year later, it became a part of the Chivas Brothers family. Today, Glenburgie's exceptional whiskies are predominantly used in blends, notably in the creation of Ballantine's. Limited: Only 240 bottles of this extraordinary whisky have been released worldwide.

Tasting notes

Color

Amber

Aroma

Smell of a pantry

Taste

Balanced Balsamic notes, salty, honey, spices, mint and berries. Even a bit licorice.

Finish

Opulent, juicy and rich.

About Independent Bottler Samaroli: Samaroli is probably Italy's most renowned independent bottler, considered a visionary by most. Impeccable taste and an eye for aesthetics have given numerous of his bottlings a worthy place in the pantheon of whisky and rum giants. Today the production is under Antonio Bleve's direction, who has collaborated with Samaroli for many years and shares the passion and philosophy of the house. Antonio Bleve continues his quest for exceptional casks, relying on the brand's historical relationships and new interactions, making their latest bottlings increasingly in demand.

