Tasting notes

Color

Clear

Aroma

Creamy, with a soft caramel sweetness. A touch of citric acidity lurks behind: candied lemon slices and a squirt of juice.

Taste

The caramel sweetness from the nose dominates the palate, balanced by a touch of pithy lemon. Dark sugars hide at the back, and the creaminess comes through in the soft texture. There is a touch of heat at the back of the palate, with some gently prickly alcohol.

Finish

Candied lemon and butterscotch.

Malted Irish wheat is steeped in hot water to produce a sweet liquid called "wort". Once cooled, champagne yeast is added and fermented for seven days. The alcoholic liquid that results from this fermentation, the "wash", is then distilled three times in a 500 litre "Mr Fusion" still to obtain 96%. Finally, purified water is added to this very strong alcohol to bring it down to a harmonious 41%.
