SPRINGBANK 10 YEARS OLD | 2025

Bourbon & Sherry | Single Malt Whisky

Springbank 10 Years Old, 2025 release, from Scotland's most independent distillery, located in Campbeltown, once home to over 30 distilleries and now one of only three remaining. Springbank malts, grinds, distils, matures and bottles entirely on-site, an artisanal continuity unmatched in Scottish whisky. MATURATION: 2.5-times distilled from mixed peated and unpeated malt, matured for 10 years in a selected mix of ex-bourbon and ex-sherry casks. 46% volume, non-chill-filtered, natural colour. Annual release, each batch varies slightly in cask composition. SERVING: serve neat in a Glencairn at room temperature, 46% volume needs no water. The oily, saline, gently smoky Springbank character is at its most readable here: it tells you in one glass exactly what Campbeltown is and why no other Scottish region produces anything quite like it. Pairs naturally with smoked fish, mature Cheddar or a medium-dried saucisson. An ideal recommendation for any whisky drinker ready to move beyond Speyside.

Tasting notes

Color

Luminous amber gold.

Aroma

Gentle peat smoke, salt air, baked apple, vanilla and an oily backdrop. Completed by malt, caramel and dried fruit.

Taste

Generous, oily palate with the house's signature meaty texture.

Finish

Long, saline finish of soft peat, spiced oak and a persistent note of dried fruit. SPRINGBANK DISTILLERY Founded in 1828 in Campbeltown on the Kintyre peninsula, Springbank is still owned by the Mitchell family, fifth generation, making it one of the last Scottish distilleries in founding-family hands. It is also the only distillery in Scotland to carry out the complete process on site: floor malting, mashing, fermentation, distillation (2. 5 times for Springbank, 2 for the peated Longrow, 3 for the unpeated Hazelburn) and bottling. Its stills remain partly direct-fired. Campbeltown was the world whisky capital in the 19th century; after nearly vanishing, the region today counts three distilleries, with Springbank as its historic guardian. The house style is dense, oily, lightly peated and marked by salt air. The distillery also produces the Longrow and Hazelburn brands.
