

SPRINGBANK 12 YEARS OLD | 2025

Campbeltown Single Malt | Cask Strength

Springbank's Cask Strength edition is the fuller sibling to the distillery's standard expression, same malt, same casks. The added volume reveals everything the distillery holds back at standard release: the oily density, the savoury drive, the unmistakable meaty texture. MATURATION: 12 years in a house-selected mix of ex-bourbon and ex-sherry casks, drawn from Springbank's mixed peated and unpeated malt. Non-chill-filtered, natural colour. Annual release, one of Campbeltown's most sought-after expressions in serious whisky circles. SUGGESTIONS: serve neat first in a Glencairn, let it sit for two minutes. Then add a few drops of cool water; the profile opens considerably. Pairs with smoked meats, an aged Comté or a chocolate-led plate. Cigar match: a Honduran corojo or Nicaraguan criollo, full-bodied enough to stand up to the malt.

Tasting notes

Color

Deep amber gold.

Aroma

Springbank character at full power: soft peat, sea salt, dried fruit, leather, beeswax and a signature smoky-oily backbone.

Taste

Powerful, oily attack, salted peat, candied red fruit, brown caramel, cinnamon and black pepper.

Finish

Very long salted-spiced finish of peat, toasted oak and a return of dried fruit and dark chocolate.

SPRINGBANK DISTILLERY Founded in 1828 in Campbeltown on the Kintyre peninsula, Springbank is still owned by the Mitchell family, fifth generation, one of the last Scottish distilleries in founding-family hands. It is the only distillery in Scotland to carry out the entire process on site: floor malting, mashing, fermentation, distillation and bottling. Stills are partly direct-fired. Once the world whisky capital, Campbeltown today counts only three working distilleries, with Springbank as its historic guardian. House style: dense, oily, lightly peated, saline.
